To Our Valued Clients, Employees, and Business Partners:

Subject: Carmichael International Service – CTPAT and Global Supply Chain Security Statement of Support

Carmichael International Service recognizes that the security, integrity, and resilience of the global supply chain are essential to protecting international commerce, our clients, our employees, and the communities in which we operate.

As a longtime participant in U.S. Customs and Border Protection's Customs Trade Partnership Against Terrorism program, commonly known as CTPAT, Carmichael remains fully committed to maintaining the program's security standards and strengthening our internal controls, business practices, and partnerships. Carmichael has proudly participated in the CTPAT program since 2003.

Our commitment extends beyond regulatory compliance. Supply-chain security is a shared responsibility that requires continued vigilance, accountability, communication, and cooperation throughout every level of our organization and across our network of clients, service providers, carriers, vendors, and other business partners.

Carmichael is committed to maintaining and continuously improving security practices involving:

- Business-partner screening and accountability
- Physical security and access controls
- Personnel security and employee awareness
- Conveyance, container, and cargo security
- Procedural security and documentation controls
- Cybersecurity and protection of confidential information
- Incident reporting, emergency response, and business continuity
- Training, risk assessment, and continuous improvement

We expect our employees and business partners to remain alert to potential security risks, promptly report suspicious activity or security concerns, and support the policies and procedures established to protect the international supply chain.

As President of Carmichael International Service, I affirm the company's continued support of CTPAT and our commitment to meeting or exceeding applicable security requirements. Our leadership team will continue to provide the oversight, resources, training, and support necessary to maintain an effective and sustainable supply-chain security program.

We appreciate the cooperation and commitment of our employees, clients, and business partners. By working together, we can continue to protect the integrity of the global supply chain and provide safe, secure, reliable, and compliant services to the customers who depend upon us.

Sincerely,

Asim Faiz

President
Carmichael International Service
